EXPLANATIONS.

Through the kindness and financial assistance of the president of our association, Mr. J. B. White of Kansas City, Mo., I am able to send out this last volume of our family Genealogy. Though Mr. White is extensively engaged in Lumber and Banking business in the South and West, as well as Deputy Governor General of Missouri, to the General Society of Colonial Wars. Yet since he learned of my work in 1894, he has been deeply interested in the history, genealogy and ancestry of the family and besides helping me, when the work has been too hard for one, he has also employed men in England to look up the ancestry of John, our emigrant ancestor, and we hope yet to be able to give you the benefit of his expenditures there.

Besides the 27,196, which are numbered in regular order in the three volumes, there are 808 in the first volume whose record was not received in season and had to be designated by letter; 984 in the second and 735 in the third, making the birth or baptism of 29,723 in the three volumes; adding the 1,833 whose record is found in the "White Family Quarterly," giving 31,556 descendants of John White.

I have used no unusual abbreviations, using those of months and states; b. born; bapt. baptized; d. died; p. page; vol. volume; dau. daughter.

I make no distinction in the male and female lines, except omitting the name of White when derived from our emigrant ancestor. Each member is numbered at birth, and when the name is followed by + it will be found again in its proper place with the birth number in a bracket at the right of the name. If no + follows, all I could learn is recorded at the birth. The small superior figures at the end of each name denotes the generation.

This volume contains branches from the fifth generation, is not complete without the first volume, which gives the first five generations, also the old homesteads, and many articles of interest, as well as a complete copy of Mrs. Mary (White) Rowlandson's "Removes," giving her captivity among the Indians in 1676.

VOLUME III.

DOROTHY Whitcomb⁵ (685), b. in Lancaster, Mass., May 13, 1739; m. in Leominster, Mass., June 23, 1757, Stephen Johnson of Leominster. There is a tradition in the family that Mr. Johnson was from Hingham, and of Scotch descent, but we have been unable, though making every effort possible, to connect him with the Hingham family or that of any of the other early families of Johnson. Our first knowledge of him is his baptism, as an adult, July 30, 1749, in First church, Lancaster. They lived in Leominster, on the place recently owned by the late Jonas Colburn on Pleasant street. He was a very public spirited man and held many offices of public trust, was town clerk from 1767 to 1775. We do not find the date of Mr. Johnson's death, but his will was written May 9, 1799, probated Jan. 5, 1808. Mrs. Johnson d. Nov. 20, 1804, aged 65. Children:

Col. ADOLPHUS S. Hubbard⁸ (20336), b. in Chicago, Ill., July 7, 1838; where he was educated in the public schools. In 1853 he entered the telegraph service as a messenger boy, expecting to learn to be an operator. He was employed in this capacity for two years. He subsequently went into the transportation business; was superintendent of an express company and cashier in an express office. Going West, he stopped for a time in New Mexico, going later to San Francisco, arriving there Dec. 28, 1866; where he has been deputy clerk of the city and county of San Francisco; deputy superintendent of streets, and he was for five years employed in the United States mint. He m. in San Francisco, Feb. 29, 1872, Sarah Isabella, dau. of John and Hannah Goodrich (Holt) Sylvester, b. Charlestown, Mass.

Col. Hubbard's occupation is now given as "secretary of the California Historical Society," but he is connected with many other similar organizations. He was an instituting member and once vice-president of the California Genealogical Society; an honorary member of the New Hampshire Historical Society; corresponding member of the Chicago Historical Society, the Rhode Island Historical Society and of the Oneida Historical Society, of Utica, N. Y. He was an instituting member and formerly secretary of California commandery of the Order of Foreign Wars, and is a member of the New Hampshire Society of Colonial Wars. He was president of the California Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in 1886 and in 1892, and he also bears the distinguished honor of being recognized as the founder of the Society. The idea of this society was first conceived in California, the California society being instituted in 1875 and completing its organization on July 4, 1876. Col. Hubbard is given the credit of organizing the society and in a still greater degree, of maintaining it through trials which would have discouraged a less patriotic man. The esteem in which his services in this connection are held is evidenced by the following resolutions passed by the California society Sons of the American Revolution September 3, 1892:

"1st. That the Society places on record, that its existence today is due to the zeal, untiring devotion, and unceasing labors of Past President Col. A. S. Hubbard, who aided in its inception and has almost single-handed brought the Society through trials and discouragements which beset all new societies, to its present prosperous condition ; therefore it recognizes him as the founder of the California Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and therefore founder of the Society at large.

“ 2d. That the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution is earnestly requested in its proceedings and publications to recognize Col. A. S. Hubbard as the founder of the California Society, and thereby founder of the Society at large, an honor which by his patriotic labors he has merited, and to which he is justly entitled.

“ The congress of the Sons of the American Revolution held in Louisville, Ky., May 1, 1890, ordered that Bro. Hubbard's name be included among those of the president-general of the national society.

“ In California Masonic circles he enjoys the distinction of being the dean of the secretaries' corps. He is not the oldest in years nor has his term of service been the longest, but there is no Masonic secretary now serving in California who was elected prior to December, 1864. He received his degrees in Chicago: in Cleveland lodge, No. 211, in 1863, of which he was the secretary from December, 1864, to December, 1865 ; in Washington Chapter, No. 43, Apollo commandery, No. 1, and in Chicago council, No. 4, R. and S. M., of which he was recorder in 1865. He was a charter member of Chicago commandery, No. 19, and served as its recorder.

“ Bro. Hubbard attended in Chicago the first reception to Abraham Lincoln after his election, at the Tremont House, Nov. 23, 1860. As secretary he called out Cleveland lodge, No. 211, to participate in his funeral at Chicago, May 1, 1865. He was made an honorary member of Ashler lodge No. 308, Chicago, in 1865. He took the first steps to organize Oakland commandery, No. 11, of San Francisco, was its generalissimo in 1876, 1877 and 1878 ; he is now a life member of that body. He has been for the past ten years secretary of Oriental lodge, No. 144, which he served as senior warden in 1888 and 1889. He is an honorary member of the Masonic Veteran Association of California and belongs to Golden Gate chapter, No. 1, O. E. S.”

JOHN Whitcomb⁷ (20587), b. in Batavia, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1816 ; went to Michigan in 1831, settling in Eckford, Calhoun county ; m. Nov. 9, 1837, Nancy Emeline Hayes, b. in Saratoga county, N. Y., (a second cousin of President Hayes). They celebrated their golden wedding Nov. 9, 1887, in Batavia, Branch county, Mich., where they remained upon their farm until the next year when they went to Coldwater, Mich., to live with their daughter where she d. June 27, 1890 ; he d. in Coldwater, June 21, 1892. It was said of him, "Passed at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Eli Ball, at the ripe age of seventy-six, John Whitcomb. He came to Michigan in 1831, settling in Eckford ; in 1850 they moved to Gilcad, Branch county, coming to Coldwater to reside in 1856, when he became Sheriff Green's deputy. In 1860 he was elected sheriff, holding the position four years ; in 1870 he was elected county treasurer, serving four years, and later he held the position of city marshal, and it can be said without fear of contradiction, that these several offices were never better filled. After several years he moved to his farm in Batavia township, where he resided until 1888, when a stroke of paralysis unfitted him for active business, since which time his home has been with his daughter Mrs. Ball. Coming from good old revolutionary stock, it is no wonder he was possessed of a firmness and decision of character that made him the admiration of all men ; yet with all, he was one of the most kindly, genial and social of men, possessed of a rich fund of humor and being a good story-teller, he was a most companionable man. Of the strictest integrity, his word was as good as a bond, and he never made a promise that he did not intend to fulfil; an unanswering Republican, almost the last words that passed his lips were, 'I hope Harrison will be re-nominated.' He was a Christian man, too, a member of the Free Will Baptist Church, faithfully living up to its teachings." Children :

SAMUEL A. Nash⁷ (20703), b. in South Hadley, Mass., July 17, 1822; was educated at Amherst College, but, his father being a man of small means, he had to largely earn his own education, though he received some little financial aid from his brother.

Such was his love of books that it is related of him that as a boy when sent to the field to plow, he would frequently be found in a fence corner buried in his book while the plow stood idle, until he was aroused from his studies. The love of books and studies was the love of a lifetime; as long as his failing strength in the last months of his life would permit he read constantly. After graduating he read law at Amherst for a time with Judge Dickison, then went to Gallipolis, Ohio, to make his home with his older brother, Simeon, with whom he continued his law studies, meanwhile teaching school at Kyger and Gallipolis until he was admitted to the bar, when he opened an office in Gallipolis, where he practiced his profession until declining health put an end to his active labors. He was elected prosecuting attorney of the county in 1855, and married, in 1856, Ruth H. Early of Virginia, sister of Gen. Jubal Early. Mr. Nash combined in an almost unqualified degree those qualities that make a lawyer and those powers that make an orator; was one of the few lawyers who were equally ready and able to present a case to the court or jury. As a trial lawyer he probably never had an equal in that county or section of the state; he was earnest in argument, keen in his analysis of the law of a case and his presentation of the evidence to the jury, with rare gifts of eloquence that made him an almost unequalled advocate. He lacked nothing that was necessary to the orator. His sense of humor was as keen as that of Swift: his wide and continued reading of the English classics had made him a master of English speech. His memory was wonderfully retentive. Added to these he was by nature a poet in the highest sense of the word: not a rhymster, but one who had the keen appreciation of the beautiful, the delicacy of touch, the sensitive nature, that makes poets and orators. He d. in Gallipolis, Sept. 21, 1903. Children:

GEORGE S. Taylor⁸ (20711), b. in South Hadley, Mass., Mar. 2, 1822; moved with his parents to Chicopee Falls in 1828; he was dependent on the schools of the town for his education, with the exception of a finishing course at the school kept by Rev. Sanford Lawton of Springfield, Mass. In 1839 Mr. Taylor entered the store of Colonel Bryant where he was clerk for two years. In 1842 he began work for S. A. Sackford & Co., and soon afterward was made a partner in the firm, on his becoming of age in 1843. The name of the firm was then changed to Sackford & Taylor and he continued in the business for twenty years. He m. Nov. 25, 1845, Asenath B., dau. of Elias and Rebecca (Gill) Cobb, b. in Princeton, Mass., Jan. 21, 1826; her grandfather, Moses Gill, was at one time governor of Massachusetts, and was so much esteemed by the people that when Gill was made a town it was given his name. Her grandmother Gill was a daughter of Rev. Thomas Prince, b. May, 1687, Harvard College, 1707, a son of Samuel of Hull and his second wife, Mary, dau. of Gov. Hinckley. In 1840 Mr. and Mrs. Cobb left Princeton to reside in Chicopee, where Mrs. Taylor's married life was spent and where they celebrated their golden wedding, Nov. 25, 1895. Mr. Taylor is one of the most respected and influential citizens of the city and was honored by being elected without opposition as first mayor of the city in 1891. He is loyal in his allegiance to the Republican party and has held the offices as selectman and assessor, also served three years in the legislature and one term in the senate at the opening of the Civil War. He has been justice of the peace since 1845 and special justice of the Chicopee police court until 1859. In 1863 Mr. Taylor engaged in the agricultural tool business under the firm name of "Belcher & Taylor;" this company continued for two years, when the "Belcher & Taylor Agricultural Tool Co." was incorporated ; since that time Mr. Taylor has been treasurer, and since Mr. Belcher's retirement in 1866, he has also been the agent of the company. He is president of the Chicopee Falls Savings bank, of the Board of Trade, Young Men's Christian association, and Director of the Chicopee National bank of Springfield, and Director in the J. Stevens Arm and Tool company. He is a prominent, earnest and active member of the Congregational church and has been one of its deacons since June 20, 1857, superintendent of the Sunday School from 1848 to 1887, is also a member of the Belcher lodge, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, Unity chapter of Chicopee and a member of the Springfield Knights Templars ; he is president of the " Falls Building company." Gen. WILLIAM H. Nash⁸ (20812), b. in Gallipolis, Ohio, June 22, 1834, his parents having removed from South Hadley in 1833; m. (1) Jan. 1, 1857, Sue S. Forsythe of Junior Furnace, Ohio, who d. in Van Couver Barracks, Wash., Aug. 10, 1891; m. (2) Mrs. Mary (Maxon) Wilson of Gallipolis, Feb. 22, 1892; they reside in Columbus, Ohio. His education commenced early in life at the Gallia Academy, famous in that part of the state from that day to this; his education was completed with two years at Marietta College, Ohio. After leaving college he went to Cincinnati and became a clerk in one of the large wholesale and retail establishments in that city, where he remained until June, 1856, a period of more than three years. It was here that he received a thorough business education of a practical nature which stood him in good stead and was of great advantage to him in his subsequent career. In the fall of 1856 he entered business in his native town, continuing for about four years, when he disposed of the same.

On June 1, 1861, General Nash entered the Union army, being assigned to duty in the department of West Virginia as military telegraph operator. In this capacity he served at the headquarters of Major Generals George B. McClellan and W. S. Rosecrans. He continued in service until November, 1862, when he was appointed Captain and Commissary of Subsistence of Volunteers. Shortly after his appointment he was ordered to report to Gen. Rosecrans commanding the army of the Cumberland at Murfreesboro, Tenn. His service in the army of the Cumberland lasted more than a year, until April, 1864. During that time he served on the staffs of Gen. Sheridan and Gen. Crook; he served through the Tullahoma campaign and battle of Chickamauga. In April, 1864, he was transferred to the military department of West Virginia upon the request of Gen. Crook and was chief commissary on his staff during the famous Hunter's Lynchburg raid. He continued to serve as commissary of Volunteers until Dec. 15, 1865, when he accepted a commission in the same department and with the same rank in the regular army, vacating on the same day his appointment as a volunteer officer by his acceptance in the regular corps.

Since the Civil War, he has served in his official capacity on the Rio Grande river of Texas; then a brief service in Washington—1868-9; then commissary at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1869, and part of 1870 ; then chief commissary of the district of New Mexico, with station at Santa Fe, from May, 1870, to November, 1873 ; then to Louisville, Ky. ; then to Cheyenne, Wyo., in 1876, to September, 1880 ; then to Boston, Mass., until December, 1881 ; then to Washington, D. C., until December, 1884 ; then to New Orleans, La., until December, 1888 ; then to Fort Monroe, Va., until December, 1889 ; then to Vancouver Barracks, Wash., until April, 1897 ; then to St. Louis, Mo., until April, 1898 ; then to Washington city, where he was retired from active service because of age. Promotion at first, in his corps, was very slow, he having served as captain from Nov. 17, 1865, to July 14, 1890, when he was promoted to major. He received his commission as lieutenant-colonel on June 10, 1896, and as colonel on Mar. 4, 1898. On April 21, 1898, the president appointed Gen. Nash commissary general of subsistence with rank of brigadier general, United States army. At his own request, he retired May 2, 1898.

Under the law governing the army, he would have been compelled to go upon the retired list upon reaching the age of sixty-four years ; as this occurred June 22, 1898, he anticipated a few weeks, believing it to be for the best interests of the service and himself. After the retirement of Gen. Nash, he and his wife left Washington city, moving to Columbus, Ohio, his native state. (This is of necessity a very brief sketch of the career of Gen. Nash, in fact, a mere outline.) Gen. Nash d. in Columbus, Dec. 2, 1902. Child :

Mr. White was a lumberman and many have mentioned him to me as one very active in business, and highly respected ; that once seen, his fine form was not easily forgotten. He d. in Troy, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1881, and the following is from the "Troy Times" of that date : "Thomas White, one of our oldest and most respected citizens died at noon today at his residence, Number 84 Fourth street. The deceased was eighty-five years old. . . . He came to this city at an early age, for many years was engaged in the lumber business and was the agent through whom all lumber for the Rensselaer and Saratoga road was purchased. For several years he was president of the Troy Orphan Asylum and at the time of his death was one of the trustees. For a long period he was a director of the Troy City Bank, and at the time of his demise, was one of the directors of the Rensselaer and Saratoga railroad. Mr. White was a man of unsullied character and unquestioned integrity through a busy and useful life. He was formerly one of the most active and influential of our business men, but age and sickness some time since impaired his powers and during recent years he has not been prominently identified with local interests, but took great pleasure in witnessing the progress of the city ; and felt no little pride in the success and prosperity of his friends ; he was truly a good man and citizen and among the older, especially, his death will be very greatly lamented." Capt. LUCIAN A. Cook⁸ (21526), b. in Leominster, Mass., Aug. 6, 1838; was educated in his native town, attending the Leominster High school. At the breaking out of the Civil War in 1861, he was a member of the Leominster Light Infantry, and with that organization was mustered into the service of the United States, July 12, 1861. The company was designated as Company A, 15th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers. He was in all the actions in which that gallant regiment participated, until his capture at the battle of Antietam. He was taken to Libby prison, Richmond, Va., and after a few weeks was paroled and carried to "Camp Parole," Annapolis, Md., and shortly after returned home as a paroled prisoner. On account of his injuries received at the time of his capture, a severe attack of fever and ague, and general disability incident to severe campaigns and prison life, he received an honorable discharge, Dec. 31, 1862. During the year 1863, he resided a short time in Brookfield, Conn., and after his return to Leominster, received notice that he had been drafted to fill the quota of Brookfield. He, at once, reported to the authorities in Connecticut, but was at once rejected. It being his wish to do such military duty as lay in his power, he enlisted in a band organized by P. S. Gilmore for service in the Gulf States, Nov. 23, 1863. This band was known as the "First Brigade Band" and a part of the time was assigned to the 81st Regiment, United States Infantry, Department of the Gulf. By reason of failing health he was discharged at New Orleans, July 20, 1865.

July 9, 1868, he, with others organized Post 53, Grand Army of the Republic and was elected its first commander. In the spring of 1868, feeling that Leominster should be represented in the State Militia, he with several other veterans of the late war, in twenty-four hours recruited a company of sixty men, who were shortly after mustered into the service of the state for a term of three years as Company K, 10th Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. At the election of officers he was unanimously chosen Captain. While this company was under his command, he was one of the most earnest, faithful and eminently successful company commanders in the state. During this time the Leominster Light Infantry, as an organization, was an honor to the state militia and to the town of Leominster. This office he continued to hold until his death, which occurred Mar. 13, 1873. He was buried with the military honors due his rank, the funeral being largely attended by the officers of the regiment. Capt. Cook was twice married: m. (1) Oct. 5, 1865, Ellen H. He m. Apr. 3, 1791, Polly or Mary, dau. of Dr. Enoch and Eunice (Richardson) Dole, b. in Lancaster, Aug. 2, 1771. Dr. Dole was a surgeon in the Revolution and in the memoirs of Major General Heath under date of March 9, 1776, is written: "This night a strong detachment went down to open a work on Nook Hill in Dorchester still nearer to Boston. Some of the men imprudently kindled a fire behind the hill previous to the hour for breaking of ground. The enemy discovered the light of the fire; and there was, during the evening and night, a continual roar of cannon and mortars from the castle and guns on Boston Neck, south end of that town; as well as from the Americans at Roxbury, Cobble Hill and Leechmore's Point at Cambridge. The second shot from the British at the old fortifications south end of the town of Boston killed 4 Americans who were standing around the fire before mentioned at Nook Hill; one of whom was Dr. Dow of Connecticut."

For Dr. Dow should here be read Dr. Enoch Dole of Lancaster, surgeon of Colonel Ephraim Doolittle's regiment, as an epitaph in the old cemetery at Littleton tells:

"Here lies ye Body of Dr. Enoch Dole of Lancaster A.E. 33 Years 5 mo & 3 days, he unfortunately fell with 3 others ye 9th of March 1776 by a cannon Ball from our cruel and unnatural Foes ye British Troops while on his duty on Dorchester Point." (From the Military Annals of Lancaster, p. 136.)

WHITING Gates⁸ (21940), b. in Leominster, Mass., Feb. 27, 1815 ; m. Jan. 5, 1842, Lucy Ann, dau. of Salmon and Abigail (Carter) Richardson, b. in Leominster, Jan. 1, 1816. Mr. Gates said that when a lad his chief ambition was to get his liberty, leave the farm, get behind four spanking horses and be seated in the box of the stage-coach (that being the only means of public travel in his youth). Instead of becoming a skilled reinsman, he became a school-master, a deputy-sheriff, a farmer and manufacturer, but not all at the same time. When nineteen years of age, he went to Wayland, Mass., and attended a school kept by Rev. Gardner Rice; he was there ten weeks, when Marshall S. Rice of Newton Center, Mass., came over and invited him to go to Newton, where he said he had two boys who worked for their board and tuition, and he offered Mr. Gates the same chance. If there came a stormy Saturday, school was in session, and the holiday then came on some pleasant week day, when the boys would be able to do some work. He also attended Uncle Tom Frye's Quaker school at Bolton. Mr. Gates taught school four winters in Leominster and one in Lunenburg, Mass., receiving eighteen dollars per month and his board; he then went to Worcester, Mass., as a clerk for Col. Ivers Phillips, who was a deputy-sheriff under High-sheriff Willard. Mr. Gates acted as a clerk from March to September, when he was appointed as a deputy. He said the appointment frightened him when he thought of the forty thousand dollars sureties he must furnish, and he told Sheriff Willard it was no use to try to get bondsmen, but the sheriff said, "You go to Leominster and get twenty-five of the best men there on your bond," and he found them in one day's time. He remained in Worcester two years and a half. When his grandfather, John Divoll⁶ (22913), died, his mother went back to the old homestead and wanted him to come home and take his father's farm which she vacated, which he did, the farm later being taken by his brother, Augustus, he buying a saw and grist mill. Hearing of a man in Naugatuck, Conn., who wanted a mill and water privilege to make buttons, he went to see him, with the result that a room was fitted up for him in one of the mills, and he began here the button industry. He remained a year and a half, then Mr. Gates and Mr. Sydney Harris of Clinton made buttons there; later he manufactured buttons alone, and for a brief time made bone pencil tips. He remained on this place for fifteen years, until his mother's death, in 1862, when he went to his grandfather's farm, and upon that place, which bears the name "Whiting Gates farm," remained until he was seventy-seven, when he gave up the larger responsibilities and built in Leominster Center. Soon after, when Leominster Park was created and an artificial lake made, a large part of the farm was submerged. After becoming of age, Mr. Gates never missed a state or town election, was a regular attendant at all town meetings. He was the oldest native-born member of the Unitarian parish. Mrs. Gates d. Oct. 13, 1879; he d. Feb. 29, 1904.

Mr. Whitcomb went to Worcester in 1846 and was employed in the machine-shop of S. C. Coombs & Co. for four years, when his brother Carter purchased the Copying-press establishment of George C. Taft. The business developed rapidly and the firm was known as C. Whitcomb & Co. In addition to the manufacture of copying-presses, the firm began the manufacture of metal-working machine tools. This branch of the business soon outstripped that of making copying-presses; his brother retired from the firm in 1871 and it has since been known as the Whitcomb Manufacturing Co. In partnership with Mr. Augustus Rice, Mr. Whitcomb succeeded to the business of Timothy F. Taft in 1866. As a separate firm, the business of making metal shears and presses was conducted until the retirement of Mr. Rice in 1881 resulted in the union of the two concerns owned by Mr. Whitcomb. He was one of the projectors and founders of the Kabley Foundry Co., and has been an officer of the company for many years. For fifty years, Mr. Whitcomb was active in the development of Worcester's industries. Although two destructive fires entailed heavy losses, his credit remained unimpaired. He was interested neither in politics nor secret societies and the greater part of his time outside of business was passed at his home. He d. in Worcester, Mar. 28, 1900; Mrs. Whitcomb resides in Worcester. Children:

HENRY C. Tenney⁷ (22416), b. in Marlboro, N. H., Dec. 26, 1830. From an early age he manifested an unusual fondness for books, and zealously applied himself to every means of obtaining knowledge. He devoted his evenings to study, improving all the facilities of his native town, then completed his preparation for college at Westminster, Vt, under Professor L. F. Ward. His close application to study permanently injured his eyesight; and with the cherished object of his ambition almost within his grasp, he was forced to forego his plans for college and a professional career. He m. Mar. 18, 1858, Julia C. Stebbins of Hinsdale, N. H. For several years he was a successful teacher, holding successively the position of principal of Mettowee Academy, Pawlet, Vt., Peterboro Academy and the High School in Marlboro. Leaving his native town, he visited the land of gold on the Pacific coast, and finally settled, in 1862, in East Jaffrey, N. H., where for nearly six years he was clerk of the cotton factory of A. Bascomb & Co.; he was held in the highest esteem by his employers. In 1868, he settled in Orange, Mass., opening a general store under the firm name of H. C. Tenney & Co., which was gradually changed to a hardware, paint and oil house. He was one of the founders of the Orange Savings and Orange National Banks, and was an officer in each. His voice is often heard in the business and literary circles of the town of his adoption. He possesses in a marked degree the faculty of concentration, or thinking upon his feet, ever ready to answer with crushing effect any and every attack upon him. As a man in all the various stations of life, he is ever the firm lover and champion of right. Children:

BEZALEEL Baker⁵ (808e), b. in Westminster, Mass., Jan. 4, 1768. At fifteen years of age, the care of his father's farm and brickyard devolved on him and two younger brothers, his father being confined to the house by sickness for several years. He first went to Marlboro, in December, 1787, worked for his brother Jonadab at shoemaking and other business during the winter, and returned to Westminster in the spring; went back and forth occasionally until November 16, 1789, when he purchased a tract of wild land which comprised the farm recently owned by Lyman Underwood. He m. Sept. 17, 1793, Abigail, dau. of Dea. Nathan and Rebecca (Haynes) Wood of Westminster, b. June 9, 1770. Mr. Baker and his wife went to Marlboro the next day after their marriage, attended the ordination of Rev. Halloway Fish, and occupied their new house for the first time. Mr. Baker was strictly a temperance man, when every one else thought it did them good to drink ; yet his neighbors said that they never knew him to drink spirits but once, and that was at a wolf-hunt, where one was killed, and the bounty paid in rum, and, while the rain fell in torrents, he drank with the others. But the influence of his temperance habits has been very salutary on his family, for no one of them has ever made excessive use of ardent spirits. He built upon his farm, during his occupation of it, two houses, four forty-foot barns, one hundred and eighty feet of wood houses, tool houses, sheds and a cider mill, one set of barns and sheds having been struck by lightning and consumed in August, 1829. He d. Oct. 1, 1849. His widow d. Apr. 10, 1862.

Dea. Nathan Wood was a descendant of William Wood, who came to this country in 1638, and settled in Concord, Mass. Married May 2, 1750, Rebecca, dau. of Abijah Haynes of Sudbury, Mass., b. Feb. 14, 1731. Mr. Wood removed to Westminster in 1756. He was active in opposing those measures of the British government which led to the Revolution and the struggle for independence ; was a member of the first congress, which met in Cambridge, and encouraged resistance to the arbitrary acts of the English crown. He d. June 19, 1777, and his fifteen children followed his remains to the grave.

Abijah Haynes was a son of James and Sarah (Noyes) Haynes, b. in Sudbury, Oct. 16, 1701 ; m. Jan. 18, 1726, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas and Elizabeth Smith. James Haynes was the son of John and Dorothy Haynes, b. at Sudbury, Mar. 17, 1661

ABEL Baker⁶ (22589), b. in Marlboro, N. H., Apr. 8, 1797; m. (1) Apr. 18, 1821, Cordelia, dau. of Caleb and Deborah (Fairbanks) Perry, who d. Aug. 4, 1839, and he m. (2) Nov. 16, 1840, Mrs. Sarah (Crosby) Bush, who d. Mar. 27, 1872, and he m. (3) Apr. 29, 1875, Martha, dau. of Elijah and Prudence (Newell) Harrington. Deacon Baker settled in Troy, N. H., in 1821, and devoted his attention to farming. His good qualities of head and heart were soon recognized by his fellow citizens, and he became one of the leading men of the town. His sound judgement and general intelligence fitted him for any position in the community; he was frequently elected to fill the civil offices of the town, serving as selectman for some fifteen years. He was representative in the legislature in the years 40-42. He did a large amount of business in the settling of estates; his familiarity with the law fitted him for this kind of business.

The crowning excellence of Deacon Baker's life is to be found in his devotion to his Divine Master and in his noble Christian character. He experienced religion in early life, and united with the Congregational church, through the trying period of the early history of the little church in Troy, he was one of few who remained steadfast to the Congregational faith; and through his and his co-laborer's efforts, under the divine blessing, the church lived and prospered. Soon after he became a member of the church, he was chosen a deacon, and as an officer in the church, he was vigilant and faithful, watching over its members and laboring to promote their spiritual welfare. After a long and useful life he d. Sept. 26, 1878, calmly, and in full assurance of a glorious immortality. Children.

Maj. JONATHAN Grout⁵ (825), b. in Lunenburg, Mass., Apr. 24, 1760; m. int. pub. (1) May 17, 1788 in Charlestown, N. H., with Parthena, dau. of Peter and Sarah (Farnsworth) Page, b. in Charlestown, Dec. 6, 1769 and settled in what is now called Snumshire in Charlestown. Maj. Grout, as he was familiarly called, was an officer in the militia and also a justice of the peace. He was a good citizen, with at once the independence of his father, "the brave old commissary," with many of the idiosyncrasies which appear to be somewhat inherent in the Grout race and which often created no little amusement. After the decease of his first wife, when his situation, and the condition of his family were such, that he stood in need of another, the widows and marriageable ladies of the time began to manifest some curiosity, as he was a man in prosperous circumstances, to ascertain who might be the favored one, on whom his choice would fall. And such became the interest of some in the subject, that they even dared to approach him with the question, "Major Grout, which of us do you intend to take?" To which the good Major good-naturedly replied, "Wait till Thanksgiving time, and I will show you how I feel towards you." When Thanksgiving day arrived, great amusement was created on learning that he had sent to every widow in town, a pumpkin and pint of molasses that they all might be furnished with pumpkin pies for that occasion.

His choice, at length, after a suitable time, fell on Mrs. Mary Prouty, widow of Samuel Prouty, Jr., [dau. of Elijah and Mary (Stevens) King], and according to the usual custom of those times, in order to introduce his wife to her new neighbors, he soon gave a wedding party, to which as his house would not hold the whole town, he invited only those who lived between the two brooks, or between the upper and lower mills. This did not please some of his friends, outside of those limits, who received no invitation, and who therefore made no little talk about it. This coming to the ears of the Major, he said he would give another party before long, and when he did he would give such a party, as nobody could have any reason to find fault with. This declaration he made good by inviting the whole town's poor; and one who was present at this gathering, describes it as one of the happiest she ever attended. Major Grout went after them with a four-horse team, the finest that he could obtain; and the repast that was set before them, was not only bountiful, but most inviting. Of course there was no fault to be found with his party this time, and the persons who were dissatisfied with the first one, not only forgave him for what they had regarded as his neglect, but praised the goodness of heart, and heartily laughed at the eccentricity, which prompted the happy turn he had made.

His second wife dying he m. Jan. 16, 1833, Lydia, dau. of Elisha and Lydia (Durant) Putnam, b. in Charlestown, Dec. 10, 1794. The following notice of Mr. Hamlin appeared in the Granite State Journal, published at Claremont, soon after his decease on the third of May, 1875: "Ashbel Hamlin, Esq., died on the 3d of May, at his home in Charlestown, at the venerable age of 77 years. Mr. Hamlin was not only well known in Charlestown, but extensively, through his business relations, throughout Sullivan and Cheshire Counties. He was one of the selectmen in Charlestown in 1838-39-40, and '41, and the representative of the town in the Legislature in 1841-2. He was chosen one of the directors of the old 'Connecticut River State Bank,' and held the same office in the Connecticut River National Bank up to the time of his decease. He was also one of the directors of the 'Cheshire Mutual Fire Insurance Company.' Mr. Hamlin met with an accident about 17 years ago, by being thrown from a carriage, which resulted in a spinal affection, from which he suffered so much that for several years previous to his decease he was able to give but little attention to public affairs. During the last three years of his life, he was in an almost helpless condition, though he occasionally rode to the village, to attend to absolutely necessary business." SOPHIA Grout⁵ (828), b. in Charlestown, N. H., Feb. 6, 1765; m. Mar. 4, 1791, Enos, son of Capt. Phineas and Elizabeth (Stevens) Stevens, b. in Rutland, Mass., Oct. 2, 1739. He came with his father to No. 4, now Charlestown, in early life. When ten years of age, he was taken prisoner by the Indians and carried to Montreal, June 17, 1749. He was kindly treated and immediately sent back, so that he arrived at home about the middle of the September following. He retained to the close of his life a vivid recollection of his captivity. The following is from his son, late of Barnet: "My father was a lieutenant in 1756. I had his journal of an expedition up West River and so on to Fort Massachusetts. His diary was burned in the Vermont State House. It seems from this that the above commission was conferred upon him when only about sixteen years of age.

"He was elected one of the selectmen of Charlestown for the years 1773-75-76.

"In the war of the Revolution he took the side of the British. His father and brothers had been honored by commissions from the Governors of New Hampshire and Massachusetts Bay, while they were British provinces, and like many others, no doubt, he thought that the powerful crown of Great Britain would soon crush the infant American Republic. In his journal he writes:

"Charlestown, N. H., May 2nd, 1777. Set out for New York; left my all, for the sake of my king and my country."

In New York he joined a volunteer company appointed to keep guard on the coast, but it does not appear that he was ever engaged in battle. He with six others, Sept. 30, 1782, received a commission from his excellency the Commander in Chief of the British forces, to go to Nova Scotia to take charge of the provisions, arms and amunition sent by the Commander in Chief for the use of refugees, going with them to settle in that country, and divide the same among them.

He bought land and settled in Digby, Nova Scotia, where he resided until 1775. After the war he applied to the British government for indemnity for "loyalty, losses and services," but it is not probable that he was indemnified, for his property was not confiscated. In his journal he writes, "Feb. 25th, 1785. Came to Charlestown; found all my friends well; seven years and ten months since I left this town." He went from Charlestown to Barnet, Vt., and was present at a meeting of the proprietors, Aug. 23d, 1785, and drew shares in the town as one of the proprietors when the first division took place. Soon after he sold his possessions in Nova Scotia and went to Barnet to reside, where, having purchased the lands owned by his brother, and obtained vendue titles to others, he became proprietor of the principal part of the township with which his interests and history became identified.

In the autumn of 1790, Dr. Jonathan Arnold of St. Johnsbury,

Vt., being on a journey down the river stopped for a night with Mr. Stevens, (then keeping bachelor hall at Barnet). In the course of the evening the circumstances of their solitary condition becoming a subject of conversation, an expedition to Charlestown was immediately planned to take effect on the morrow, the object being to spy out the available daughters of the land. On their arrival they called on Samuel Stevens, Esq., a brother of Enos to whom they communicated the object of their coming. A consultation was held, and an arrangement entered into to issue invitations to Cynthia Hastings and Sophia Grout, daughters respectively of Lemuel Hastings and Elijah Grout, requesting their presence at tea, it being understood by those in the secret that the strangers from Vermont were to accompany them home, when each of the gentlemen before separating from his companion for the night made known the special object of his visit to Charlestown. It does not appear that Sophia Grout, who was well acquainted with the Stevens family, was at all reluctant to accept the offer that was made her. But the difficulty which she had to surmount in connection with her family was not small; for Stevens, during the war of the Revolution, had espoused the cause of the mother country, and the Grout family could not bear that one of their number should become connected with a man who had not been a tried and true patriot. At length when it was found that her determination had become too strong to be properly resisted, she was finally told that if she would marry an old Tory she might, but that she should carry nothing from the paternal mansion but herself and a cow. To this she agreed, and on the 4th of March, 1791, the afflicted Grout family witnessed the departure of Sophia with Stevens for their home in Vermont. She d. in Barnet, Sept., 1815. Children :

SALLY Sawyer⁷ (22943), b. in Lancaster, Mass., May 7, 1793; when seven years of age she attended the obsequies of George Washington, held at the town hall in Lancaster. In 1824, when General Lafayette visited Lancaster she was out with the rest of the town to welcome the distinguished general, and being near his carriage as he passed she was favored with a handshake. She m. May 13, 1841, Flavel Case of Coventry, Conn., he was chief of police in Boston, Mass., for twenty years, retiring in 1840 to his farm in North Coventry with the respect and confidence of the citizens of Boston. He d. in 1855; Mrs. Case then returned to the Sawyer homestead in Lancaster, where she spent many years. She spent the last years of her life with her brother, Mr. John Sawyer, at Wellesley Hills, Mass., where she held a reception to her friends and relatives May 7, 1893, on her one hundredth birthday; and I had the pleasure of calling upon her in January, 1894, when she told me of her grandparents and uncles and aunts, repeating many little incidents in regard to them. Of her brother, with whom she lived, she told me that, when eighteen years old, she took him on horseback, then nearly a year old, and carried him to her aunt's and kept him a week to wean him. "Yes," said her brother, "and though I am now eighty-three, I am only a boy to Sally, and she criticises me quite sharply sometimes."

Though so very aged, the morning I called, her niece, Miss Augusta Sawyer, who cared for her, was busily engaged so that she did not go at the usual time to assist her aunt in dressing. When she entered the room, some half hour later than usual, she found her up dressing herself. While talking with me she sat in her chair, and when relating anecdotes her eyes would sparkle and it was very hard to realize that she had lived through more than a century. She was for many years, and at the time of her death, a member of the Congregational church of Lancaster.

She d. at her brother's, Mar. 6, 1894.

JOHN Sawyer⁷ (22946), b. in Lancaster, Mass., Dec. 24, 1810; m. in Exeter, N. H., Mar. 3, 1845, Mary C., dau. of Samuel and Martha (Thompson) Clarke, b. in Sanbornton, N. H., May 27, 1821. When about twenty years of age he went to Boston, Mass., and engaged in office work, he joined the community "Brook farm" and they remained there until it was broken up about 1846. They then went to Worcester, Mass., from there to South Carolina, then returned to Boston, where Mr. Sawyer established the first firm in New England to deal in daguerreotype findings, and later in photographic apparatus and material. He moved to Wellesley Hills, Mass., and later retired from business on account of ill health. Both Mr. Sawyer and his wife were active workers in the cause of anti-slavery and numbered among their personal friends most of the prominent Abolitionists, including the late Frederick Douglass. At their home, gatherings of liberators frequently took place, and to the movement they lent generous financial support in its darkest days. Later, they identified themselves in an equally practical manner with woman's suffrage work. Mr. Sawyer was a firm friend and supporter of Theodore Parker. At Wellesley Hills he was an organizer of the old Liberal Society, from which was developed the present Unitarian Church. They had no children, but their niece, Augusta A. Sawyer, has made her home with them, and there cared for her aged aunt, Mrs. Case.

HENRY O. Houghton, A. B.⁷ (25852), b. in Sutton, Vt., Apr. 30, 1823. At the age of thirteen he became an apprentice in the office of the "Burlington Free Press," and there laid the foundation for his future career. His brother was at the time in college at Burlington, and, listening to his advice, he determined to acquire a thorough education. His evenings and other spare moments were devoted to study ; and at the age of nineteen he entered college at Burlington, with twelve and a half cents in his pocket, but with a substantial preparation and dauntless resolution. He graduated four years later, went to Boston, and spent two years on the "Evening Traveller" as compositor, proof-reader and reporter. In January, 1849, he joined Mr. Bolles, of the firm of Freeman & Bolles, in establishing a printing office in Cambridge, Mass. It was first located in what is now a dwelling house near Harvard College. Three years later the business was removed to the present site on the banks of the Charles River, where the Riverside Press assumed an individuality and a name, resulting in the present imposing group of buildings. From the first Mr. Houghton was the controlling spirit of the enterprise ; his purpose was not merely to do good work. It was to do the best work that could be secured anywhere and to make books that should satisfy the artistic feeling as well as the literary sense. In 1880, the house took its present title, Houghton, Miffln & Company.

On April 1, 1888, three new partners were admitted, among them, Henry O. Houghton, Jr., who still represents the name in the business. Mr. Houghton, Sen., was one of whom it is said in dealing with others, he had the faculty and disposition to put himself in their place and think how he would feel in their circumstances, which made it very pleasant for those whom he employed. He m. in Cambridge, Sept. 12, 1854, Nanna Myer, dau. of William Manning.

Mr. Houghton's home was in Cambridge, where he served the city as Mayor, 1872, and in many other ways. He d. in North DAVID Beaman⁸ (26795), b. in Westminster, Mass., Oct. 21, 1796; when twenty-one years of age he emigrated to what was then called the Black River Country. He had only his hands, which he used industriously in chopping for lumbermen to purchase his first forty acres of woodland, which he cleared with his own hands and built a log house. In the meantime his father had died; he returned to Westminster and brought his mother and the four youngest children to his new home in Antwerp, Jefferson Co., N. Y.; from then on he continued to farm and slowly add acres to his land. The log house gave way to a substantial farm house and plenty of surrounding out buildings, the older brothers and sisters followed and purchased land, married and settled around Antwerp, except Hiram, who went to Pennsylvania and settled near Union. By tact and economy their property increased until there was an estate of about 600 acres, now owned and occupied by his two youngest daughters. Mr. Beaman m. (1) Mar. 1, 1828, Lucy Porter; she d. He learned the printing trade in this office with General Comly and afterward made a success of life. He was also a valuable man in public affairs, notably in building the present city prison, when he was Police Commissioner, and in adopting a business system at the Central Insane Asylum, when he was its resident director. He was not only one who had done much for Columbus, but also for his State. Mr. Brooks was born in this city Feb. 22, 1828, at the site of the Odd Fellow's Temple where his father kept the tavern with the sign of the 'White Horse.' His mother was Keziah Hamlin and the first white child born in Columbus. Mr. Brooks began at the bottom of the ladder and by energy and close attention to business amassed quite a fortune. He was in turn a clerk in the post-office, Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court, clerk in the County Auditor's office, held the office of County Clerk for a time by the appointment of the County Commissioners. For a great many years he was in the grocery business with Nathaniel Merion and occupied the site at the southeast corner of High and Chapel Street. He was at one time member of the Board of Police Commissioners by appointment, and was in great measure responsible for the movement which resulted in the erection of the present City Prison, being one of the projectors of the same, along with DeWitt C. Jones and George F. O'Hara. He was one of the trustees of the Asylum for the Insane under Governor Bishop. The bank of which Mr. Brooks was president was organized in 1869, though the present firm was formed at a later day. He was a Knight Templar Mason and a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church."

“If you have ever stood upon the banks of a beautiful river and noticed the freight-laden boats passing and repassing, you might have felt a desire to explore its source. The beginning would not have the same attraction as the place where it broadens, becomes deeper, and is capable of carrying its burden of commerce. That is more impressive and of value to the community. So it is with human life. Youth is the beginning, and preparation for future manhood. How important it is that we should broaden our knowledge, form our character upon a solid foundation, deepen our ideas of living, so that when we are called upon to assume our position in the world, we shall find ourselves ready and capable of taking upon our shoulders its manifold burdens. To do whatsoever one undertakes, and to do it well, is the keynote of character. It is of such a man these pages tell, for he cultivated character in its phase of uprightness and integrity, generosity, and devotion to whatever interests he was called upon to undertake. He was honored, trusted and believed throughout his entire life. His business career was without blemish. ‘He died an honest man.’ Such were the comments of his friends and business associates.

David W. Brooks was born February 22, 1828, in Columbus, Ohio. He was the son of David and Keziah (Hamlin) Brooks. His father was from the State of Massachusetts and was descended from one of the first English families that settled upon the bleak shores of New England in about the year 1636. The son naturally inherited some of the characteristics of his Puritan ancestry. Energy, thrift and enterprise, coupled with an insight into business, marked his whole course through life. His energy led him into many different pursuits. In them all he proved a success. He was born in the White Horse Tavern, situated on High street. The old building has long since been torn down, and in its place the present Odd Fellows' Temple now stands. His parents at the time were owners of the hotel, and here his boyhood days were spent, while Columbus was yet a village. The completion of the National Pike was an event long looked to by the settlers of those early days. To the proprietors of taverns along the route it meant much, the stage coach, with passengers and horses being a source of revenue. Around the evening fire in the large waiting room, while the logs crackled and the sparks flew, news of the outside world was passed around to those who chose to listen. There can be no doubt but that from this source of information and inspiration came the desire to the boy for an education. It was not long before the youth was under the charge of a school teacher. She was from Wareham, Mass., and was the best that could be secured then. It is seemingly but a short span from school days to married life. He becomes a man, assumes his position in the world as such, and is ready to take upon himself his full share of its responsibility. Meanwhile he had learned the printing trade in the office of the Ohio State Journal, and subsequently became a reporter on that paper, along with Gen. James M. Comly and William Dean Howells. In after years he commented upon the greatness of Mr. Howells, who had achieved a position in the literary world second to none in this country, though when they started to become printers, nothing could then be more undesirable to themselves than to be known as literary men.

On September 21, 1850, David W. Brooks married Anna Maria Simpkins. She was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and was descended from a family that produced a number of Lutheran ministers, one being chaplain in the Prussian Army. He came to America just before the Revolutionary War and settled in the Quaker City. Mrs. Brooks was a woman of fine character and of deep religious convictions. In St. Paul's church, within the chancel rail next to the reredos, stands a memorial chair placed there, with her name inscribed on brass. Surely such a testimonial must bear silent witness to her character. She was a woman who believed that God in all things is supreme. His love is paramount, and at the last, when through with life's cares and struggles, we shall find in Him eternal rest.

David W. Brooks, for a few years, was employed in the post-office. It was during this time he showed marked evidence of literary ability; his contributions to a book, 'Ten Years Among the Mail Bags,' being his first effort. Also, his contributions later on to the Knickerbocker Magazine, published in Philadelphia, Pa., were always acceptable. His writings consisted of stories and scenes taken from every day life. Those who knew when his stories would appear, and read them, pronounced his work as being of a high order; his imagination being chaste, diction fine, and style expressive. They were always in demand and found ready sale to the publishers. He did not care to be known as a writer, believing that it was of no value to a man to be known as such. Moreover, he would never allow his name to be mentioned in connection with anything he had ever written.

From the Journal office we find him next in the employment of the county, holding the position by appointment as clerk in the County Auditor's office. In 1862, he was appointed County Clerk to complete the term of James H. Smith, deceased. He was appointed Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court of Ohio; serving in these different capacities acceptably. He now had reached the age when his ambition led him to consider the more serious duties of life. One was, that a man in business striving and working for himself, devoting his energies to the upbuilding of his own fortune, was doing the correct thing. He resolved upon a mercantile pursuit as best suited to the conditions then existing in the city, and promising the most financial reward.

In the year 1860, the firm of Brooks, Stearns & Co. was organized; afterwards, owing to the retirement of Mr. Stearns, who was succeeded by Nathaniel Merion, the new firm of Brooks, Merion & Co., wholesale and retail grocerymen, continued the business. The war following soon after gave impetus to trade, and coupled with good business management, the firm prospered greatly, building up a reputation for square and honest dealing, also securing a volume of trade largely in excess of any other firm in like business in the city.

It was while Mr. Brooks was a merchant he conceived the idea that another banking house could be organized and made a success. Accordingly, in October, 1869, the Bank of Sparrow, Hines & Co. opened its doors to the general public at the corner of High and Town streets. The owners of the bank (which was a private institution) were David W. Brooks, Thomas Sparrow, Oliver P. Hines and James M. Walker, all well-known and prosperous men of the day, Mr. Sparrow being a lawyer of State reputation. (The late ex-president of the United States, Rutherford B. Hayes, studied law in his office.) Mr. Sparrow was also a Mason of high standing. He, however, did not long survive. His death occurred about five years after the bank had opened. He was succeeded by David Taylor, a pioneer in this section of the country. Mr. Taylor was a man of much influence in the county, and the owner then of more land than any other person in this part of the State, his acreage being in the thousands. The bank continued under this ownership until 1878, when the interests of Oliver P. Hines and David Taylor were disposed of, through purchase, to C. P. L. Butler and his brother, Theo. H. Butler. Mr. Brooks, having retired from mercantile pursuits, became president and manager of the banking house he had organized in 1869. He continued as such under the firm name of Brooks, Butler & Co., Bankers, until his death.

There is born in the heart of every true American a love of country and a patriotic devotion that will assert itself when occasion arises. Moreover, a call to arms will be immediately answered by men both old and young, all willing to do or die if necessary in its defense. The fundamental principle of our government is 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.' This is what our ancestors struggled for, won, and handed down to each succeeding generation to maintain at all hazard. It would be unnatural not to find this spirit of patriotism existing at all times among the youth of the land. We see it in every city and village of the country, the militia being the advance school of military practice, separate organization into companies being first. More than sixty years ago, about fifty of the youth of Columbus organized for muster and drill a company called Columbus Lancers, which existed for a number of years. In early days the music of fife and drum was the inspiration that aided the boys in keeping up their martial spirits and making them feel like the real soldier. There are only a few of this company now living, James Wetmore, who played the snare drum, and William G. Deshler, bass drummer. These composed the band of that old company, along with David W. Brooks, fifer.

About the time Civil War was declared in 1861, the Governor of the state, William Dennison, called upon the State Militia for service. We find the fifer of the Columbus Lancers doing duty as a private. His time of service was short, he having been stricken by sunstroke, and for years suffered its effects. But for this his military service would probably have extended over a longer period, as his company was called home and a large number of them re-enlisted in the Army of the United States. The following letter will show the early activity of Ohio in protecting herself against invasion and the material interests of her citizens.

STATE OF OHIO,
 ADJUTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT,
 COLUMBUS, December, 3, 1904.

I hereby certify that the records of this Department show that the Governor of Ohio did, on the 19th day of June, 1861, order into active service a battalion of the Reserve Militia of Ohio, under the immediate command of Major O. Bennett, for the purpose of guarding and protecting from the enemy the bridges, trestles and road of the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad; that said service appeared necessary to prevent the destruction of these properties by the rebel troops, threatening invasion of the southern portion of Ohio. It is further shown that of the troops so ordered on duty, the company under command of Captain M. C. Lilley was placed on duty June 19th 1861, and remained on duty July 24, 1861, a period of thirty-three days. It is further shown that the state mustered and paid the troops engaged upon this duty. It is further certified that the muster-roll of Captain M. C. Lilley's command on said duty, shows that D. W. Brooks served as a private with the company for sixteen days from June 19, 1861.

[SEAL]

COL. WORTHINGTON KAUTZMAN,

Asst. Adjutant General.

Mr. Brooks was often called upon at the citizens' meetings to serve in different capacities, such as secretary or chairman. These gatherings, as a rule, were to discuss plans and projects for the benefit of the city at large. At one of these he was honored by being made secretary of an executive committee organized for the purpose of making arrangements to entertain Gen.

U. S. Grant. This committee consisted of two hundred or more citizens of the town. General Grant visited the capital of his native State in December, 1879, upon his return from his famous journey around the world. The welcome accorded this great warrior by the citizens of Columbus and surrounding country was all that could be desired. For hours he stood in the rotunda of the State Capitol, shaking hands with thousands of people as they passed. In the evening a grand ball at the City Hall was the consummation of this event. A committee consisting of David W. Brooks, Henry T. Chittenden and W. Neil Dennison, next day accompanied the General to the depot upon his departure from the city.

Mr. Brooks was appointed trustee of the Columbus Asylum for Insane by Governor Bishop, and confirmed by the Senate in January, 1878. On organization of the board, which was composed of the following citizens: E. J. Blount, David W. Brooks, both of Columbus; Joseph P. Smith, Circleville; George W. Morgan, Mt. Vernon; and Benjamin Myers, M. D., Ashland; he was made secretary and continued as such until he resigned. He was active in the work while a member of this body, and inaugurated a system of keeping accounts in the asylum which is still in operation. This being a large institution, it required a systematic record for handling the receipts and disbursements. This record gives a complete detail of all personal requirements of its inmates; also an exact statement of its financial affairs from day to day. This system for keeping accounts has been adopted by other institutions throughout the State.

It was during his term as Police Commissioner that he took the greatest interest in the moral welfare of the city. The older inhabitants of Columbus will remember the 'calaboose' or station house located back of the Central Market House on Fourth street. The city then had a population of forty or fifty thousand people. This station house had long been a sore spot to the city; it being entirely too small and inadequate for the purpose intended, and for downright filth could not be equaled. In it all criminals were crowded. The small room in the second story was for the men and boys. The first floor was used for unfortunate women. The building was about forty feet square and two stories high. Across the narrow street, upstairs, a large room in the Central Market House served as police court. The prisoners were conducted through the street, upstairs into the court-room for trial.

After two or three years of hard and almost discouraging work, Mr. Brooks, with the aid of the Rev. A. G. Byers, a member of the State Board of Associated Charities, and the Hon. DeWitt C. Jones, a lawyer, also member of City Council at this time, succeeded in having passed an ordinance through Council to purchase land and build a city prison. The building was commenced in the spring of 1878, and represented the idea in construction, of what was then called prison reform. That is, providing cell departments for the classification of criminals, sanitary in construction; a hospital for the sick or wounded; padded rooms for the insane; comfortable, neat rooms, though bars at the windows, for the better class of suspects only, both men and women. The building is three stories high.

On December, 18, 1878, the cornerstone of the new City Prison, erected on the bank of the Scioto River at the foot of Town street, was laid with appropriate ceremonies. The large derrick by which the stone was lowered had a flag floating aloft, and the services were as impressive as they could be made. The attendance included all of the city officials, police and fire department, and prison contractors, who marched from City Hall to the place of ceremony.

The reader will observe that in the address delivered by Mr. Brooks when the prison was dedicated, many ideas advanced by him, nearly a quarter of a century ago, are now accepted. They are being put into practical force by nearly every State having humanitarian sympathies for its unfortunates.

The following account of the opening of the new City Prison is taken from the Ohio State Journal, Tuesday morning, December 30, 1879.

GRAND OCCASION.

THE NEW CITY PRISON FORMALLY OPENED FOR OCCUPATION —AN INSTITUTION FOR REFORM AS WELL AS CUSTODY.

Among the many speakers were the Hon. DeWitt C. Jones, Rev. A. G. Byers, Hon. Chauncey N. Olds, David W. Brooks and others. A short extract from the address of Mr. Brooks delivered upon that occasion is as follows :

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen—We are glad to see so many present to witness the opening ceremonies of this symbol of the sovereignty of the law. The universal expressions of approval as to its construction, I am pleased to say, indicates a growing feeling of sympathy for the unfortunates who are to be hereto committed, and who will here suffer the penalty of broken law. I am proud to say, that while in its construction it symbolizes majesty, dignity and authority of the municipality, that it also honors our civilization, because it is a step forward in the direction of that Christian charity which is steadily and surely correcting public opinion and converting our prisons into educational and reformatory, rather than penal institutions.

That the peace and good order of the city may be maintained, that the citizens thereof may be protected in the enjoyment of life and property, such a building is a necessity, for since the killing of Abel, the first crime which blotted the pages of history, crime has existed. Sad as may be the commentary on the enlightenment of our age, the necessity continues; for is not the road to destruction broader than the road which leads to a better life.

The various causes which prompt the commission of crime presents a vast field of contemplation, its results being a great train of broken, bleeding, sorrowing and suffering hearts; and the best means to be used for its prevention and punishment, is food for the most earnest and intelligent reflection.

Idleness, either voluntary or enforced, is one of the great promoters of crime. The vicious associations it engenders, the dissolute habits to which it leads, are but preludes to the wickedness which follows. Corrupted by idleness and contaminated by evil communications, the heart becomes callous and the bent of the mind is toward that which is evil.

Following idleness comes the desire for stimulants to 'kill time' or to 'drown sorrow' both crimes in themselves. What shall be said of strong drink, the king cause of almost all the crimes in the catalogue of sin? This instigator of heated passion, this murderer of innocent babes and loving mothers, this desolator of mind, body and estate, this breeder of more wretchedness, want and woe than all else? When the passion for strong drink gains the mastery there is but little hope of amendment of life; step by step the victim advances in crime until overtaken by the avenging hand of the law. First the police station house, second the county jail, third the penitentiary, fourth and lastly the sheriff's noose or some other disgraceful death. A wasted life yielding a harvest of sorrow only. The entreaties of a loving mother, the supplications of a devoted wife, the expostulations of friends, all are unheeded — nothing can move him. Hope is deferred until finally hope is disappointed.

Is there a mother here to-night whose heart was once made glad with the hope and promise that her son would be a staff in her declining years, but who is now mourning the corruption of heart induced by strong drink? I hope not, for King Solomon truly said, 'A foolish son is the heaviness of his mother.'

The great step toward the prevention of crime is the separation and classification of offenders. We, to-night, celebrate the completion of a building which is a model prison. In the great wisdom of our city fathers, this has been erected and is by them dedicated in humanity to their erring children. In this building, absolute separation and perfect classification is attained.

The prison department is in the lower story, which is divided into four cell rooms, two for male and two for female, containing seventy-eight cells. These rooms are all large, well heated by steam, well lighted and perfectly ventilated, and sewerred, rendering it almost, if not quite impossible for odors or foul air to be engendered.

Connected with each cell is a water pocket, which hourly supplies the occupant with cool, fresh drinking water, a decent sleeping place, a bread or victuals tray, and a water closet. The cells are built with reference to separation and seclusion, and consequently there can be as many classifications as there are cells in each room. An offender can be taken to any cell in either room, without being seen by occupants of other cells, and from thence to the Mayor's Court without being seen by inmates or the public.

The second story, or administration part of the building, is divided into the Mayor's Court room, offices for the Mayor, Police Commissioners, Secretary of the Police Commissioners, Superintendent of Police, a stolen or lost property room, and eight well-ventilated, well-lighted and well-warmed strong rooms for young or first offenders. The arrangement of these strong rooms admits of eight classifications. One of the most secluded of these strong rooms was intended to be padded with stout leather, and stuffed with hair; in which insane persons or victims of delirium tremens would be confined, thus protecting them from self-injury. Ample facilities for bathing and cleansing inmates are provided in each of the lockups.

The third story is divided into a large room for the assembling of the police force, wardrobe and dressing room, hospital, dispensary, laboratories and bathrooms.

Too much praise cannot be awarded the City Council, the Police Commissioners, the press and public. They favored the enterprise at the beginning and were faithful to the end. Another suggestion as to what would result in the prevention of crime: An enactment by the Legislature of a law empowering the Boards of Education in each city and town in the State to employ one or more humane and judicious persons, male or female, clothed with the power to arrest, to act as officers whose duty it would be to inquire into the history of any child between the ages of seven and fifteen who is found wandering about the streets or public places of such city or town, having no lawful occupation or business, not attending school, and growing up in idleness and vice. If they find upon inquiry, that the parent or parents of such child encourages such idleness, or that the child is incorrigible, notify the parent or parents that the child must be put at some lawful occupation or business, kept off the streets, or sent and kept at some school of learning, either public, private or parochial, under penalty of the arrest of said child, and sentence to such an educational and reformatory institution as may be designated in said act.

If upon inquiry, the parent or parents of said child shall be found to be unable to properly clothe them for reception at school, and for that reason only are they kept out, they shall be decently clad at public expense, placed in such school, public, private or parochial, as the parents may elect, at the usual charges for tuition if any, and kept there under the surveillance of the officer or officers before mentioned. The maximum of the sentence to be also fixed in the law. The courts, upon whom jurisdiction shall be conferred, to carefully examine into the facts of the case and sentence as the facts shall warrant.

Undoubtedly some will say, Why, this would be compulsory education. Others will probably say, 'I don't want my child dragged to school by an officer.' I would much prefer to have a child of mine 'dragged' to school than dragged to the City Prison, and finally to the Penitentiary.

Say of it what you will, society is in a measure responsible for its waifs; at least the responsibility cannot be shirked, it is before us daily. I think such a law would be a great preventer of crime, and surely at a far less cost of sobs, sighs and tears, saying nothing of money, than an education acquired in the average police station house or calaboose.

May we who are free from the vices that will lead others here, remember in charity those who are strangers to this happiness. Let us extend to them such acts of mercy and words of encouragement as may with blessings of Providence prove a pillar of fire, to guide them in this wilderness of sin and save them from a fatal fall. For is it not a worthier victory by far, to win a heart than desolate a soul?

This prison was completed and occupied January 1, 1880. It was pronounced the most modern in the Central West, and was visited largely by men from the East who were interested in prison reform. The Ohio State Board of Charities, consisting of the following gentlemen: Governor Richard M. Bishop, John W. Andrews, A. G. Byers, Secretary of the Board, all of Columbus; Roeliff Brinkerhoff, of Mansfield; Joseph Perkins, Cleveland, and M. D. Carrington, Toledo, Ohio, endorsed it as a board in the following statement: 'We would call attention to the new City Prison recently built at Columbus as the best in Ohio and probably equal to any in the United States. It is well worthy the attention of city authorities generally, as suggesting the true plan upon which they should be constructed.'

Mrs. Brooks d. Mar. 19, 1866, and he afterwards married Emma L. Brooks, of Worcester, Mass., who d. February 17, 1889.

David W. Brooks d. January 31, 1890. He was a member of St. Paul's Church, and a member of Mt. Vernon Commandery, Knights Templar, Columbus, Ohio. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Charles O'Meara of Trinity Episcopal Church. The pall bearers were Peletiah W. Huntington, Chas. J. Hardy, James H. Barcus, Edward L. Taylor, Theodore H. Butler, and George Bellows. He was buried from his residence on East Rich street, he having acquired this home in 1853, and moved there in that year with his young wife.

It was here that all of their children were reared. The homestead was called Rose Hill, on account of its beautiful shrubbery and rose bushes grown upon the lawn. The place was a delight to the eye in summer.

The homestead remained in possession of the family until a few years ago, when owing to the rapid progress of building in that locality it was divided into lots and disposed of for other homes."

H. B.

JOHN H. Leavitt⁷ (13588), p. 359, b. in Heath, Mass., Oct. 11, 1831; when about five years of age his father moved to Charlemont, Mass. He attended the district school and Franklin Academy in Shelburne Falls, and afterwards studied about one year in Williston Seminary in East Hampton, Massachusetts. In 1853, he left his New England home for the West, going to Iowa in April, 1854, and to Waterloo, Iowa, in September of the same year, where he has since resided. His first occupation in the West was that of a surveyor and civil engineer; later he engaged in buying and selling real estate, and afterwards in banking, which business he has continued until the present time, being president of the Leavitt and Johnson National Bank of Waterloo. He is a republican in politics, casting his first vote for John C. Fremont in 1856. In 1871, he was elected to the Iowa Senate. He was one of the charter members of the First Congregational Church of Waterloo. He married Jan. 1, 1858, Caroline C. Ware of Putnam County, Ill., dau. of Ralph and Lucinda (Clark) Ware of Conway, Mass., b. Oct. 11, 1836. They have five children and twelve grandchildren.

Mr. Leavitt is a descendant of Rev. Jonathan Leavitt, the first minister of Charlemont. Jonathan Leavitt was born in Suffield, Conn., in 1731; before he was two years old his father, a brother and a sister all died within three days. The character of the family is best inferred upon the fact that three of the sons were educated at Yale; two of them became ministers and a daughter was the mother of Chief Justice Ellsworth of the United States Supreme Court. Jonathan was graduated from Yale and ordained at Walpole, N. H., in 1761, his brother, Freegrace, of Somers, Conn., preaching the ordination sermon, and appreciated an interesting discourse worthy of the care with which it has been preserved.

home, then the schoolhouse, later the church, was carried out by the people of Charlemont, but for the first twenty-five years their efforts to form a church were unavailing because of the continuous Indian warfare. In March, 1767, David White (son of Col. Jonathan and great-grandfather of John B. White of Kansas City) was chosen by the town to go to Walpole and invite Mr. Leavitt to preach as a candidate; negotiations were not completed until September, when the town voted "to accept the proposal of Mr. Leavitt to become their minister," and a committee was appointed to prepare for the installation. The installation, however, was postponed until October of the following year, (1768), probably for a lack of a suitable place for the exercises.

Mr. Leavitt was living in Charlemont in November, 1767, although no records of the organizations of the church have been found it is probable from the best evidence attainable, that during the year the church was organized, the meeting-house constructed and Mr. Leavitt's residence built for him by the town, as agreed upon by the terms of settlement. For one hundred and thirty-five years this house has withstood the gales which sweep over the top of Greylock and Hoosac mountains, and at the present time is connected with the outside world by that modern invention, the telephone. The timbers in the frame are very large, and including the studs and braces, were hewn from the primeval forest trees, the clapboards are split and shaved and all less than six feet in length, the boards used in the floors are very wide, some of them measuring two feet across.

The amount of labor represented by the construction in the wilderness of two such substantial buildings in one season by a small handful of men well illustrates the intelligent industry and determination, characteristic of the New England pioneer. It is said of Mr. Leavitt: "He was endowed with good talents, a gentleman in his manners, hospitable and very social in his ample home, and a Christian in his deportment at home and abroad." "He dressed in the costume of the day, wearing a powdered wig and cocked hat, and made a dignified appearance." The congregation were accustomed to rise and salute their minister upon his entrance to the meeting-house for the Sabbath service. "His sermons are sound in theology and manifest a mind able to work with profound subjects."

Since the death of Mr. Leavitt, a hundred years ago, a tradition has prevailed that he favored the mother country during the Revolutionary period, but the following incident would seem to disapprove such a theory and establish beyond question the fact that his sympathies were with the patriots in their struggle for independence. On Thanksgiving day in 1777, Mr. Leavitt preached a sermon to his congregation in Charlemont which bears on the title page, in his own handwriting, the following inscription: "A Thanksgiving anniversary discourse in commemoration of the glorious victory of the American troops over a whole British army under General Burgoyne, resulting in the surrender of the British to the Americans under General Gates on October 17th, 1777." Eighty-eight years later Rev. Wm. S. Leavitt, (then pastor at Hudson, N. Y., a great grandson of Rev. Jonathan Leavitt), preached a Thanksgiving sermon in commemoration of the close of the war of the Rebellion. At the beginning of the discourse he held up to the view of his audience this ancient manuscript, read to them the title page, and used the same text as the subject of his sermon.

Mr. Leavitt's pastorate in Charlemont covered a period of eighteen years, and terminated with the organization of the new town of Heath (which included Mr. Leavitt's residence) in 1785. At the same time a new church was formed in Heath, but for five years they had no settled pastor, and part of this time Mr. Leavitt officiated as their minister. But few newspapers were taken in Heath at that time and consequently the voters were not well informed on political subjects. The following incident illustrates the confidence Mr. Leavitt's townsmen placed in his judgment. At a town meeting in Heath the people voted for Samuel Adams for governor. Mr. Leavitt arrived at the meeting after the vote had been taken and informed the voters that Mr. Adams was a democrat and they should have voted for the Whig candidate. The people became excited at this information and decided to ballot a second time, with the result that the Whig candidate received the vote of the town.

He was active in business affairs and acquired considerable property, his home from the time of the settlement in Heath in 1768, until his death in 1802, was the house built for him at the time of his settlement. Mr. Leavitt married in 1761, Sarah Hooker, a great granddaughter of Rev. Thomas Hooker, a noted New England divine. She died in 1791, and Rev. John Emerson of Conway in the funeral sermon says: "In addition to good natural talents, Mrs. Leavitt possessed an unaffected and most engaging temper and deportment, which gave a luster to the beauty of her person far superior to what it could have derived from the most brilliant ornaments of art." Mr. Leavitt has said of the oldest child: "My dear and only daughter Clarissa died in 1798; she was a professor of the faith and in the judgment of charity died in the Lord." Jonathan the oldest son, was graduated from Yale and became a successful lawyer at Greenfield. He was appointed judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1812, and judge of Probate in 1814, which office he held until 1821. The family home in Greenfield is now known as the Hovey residence and is still a prominent feature in Greenfield architecture. The west wing was used as a business office. His wife was a daughter of President Stiles of Yale, and his family of daughters were conspicuous in the social life of the period in Greenfield. Hart, the second son, was also a resident of Greenfield, where he kept an old-fashioned store of general merchandise located just west of the residence of his brother Jonathan. His home was on the same side of Main street a little farther east. The following account of his marriage is taken from the "Boston Gazette and Century Magazine," dated Feb. 11, 1793: "Marriages at Deerfield, Mass., Capt. Joshua Clapp of Burlington, Vt., to Miss Abigail Barnard of Deerfield; Mr. Hart Leavitt of Greenfield, to Miss Rachel Barnard; Dr. Stone of Greenfield, to Miss Sally Barnard." It is worthy of remark that the three brides were sisters and one matrimonial eve made wives of them all; the sisters are the originals of Mrs. Yale's "Brides in Blue." Joshua, the third son, left New England for the West Indies in 1791, the ship was wrecked on a desert island, where he lived for several years, subsisting principally upon crawfish. After his rescue he established a business in Charleston, S. C., but did not communicate with his New England friends. In the summer of 1802, some bales of cotton were seen on a wharf in New York marked "Joshua Leavitt." In August, Mr. Leavitt made a journey on horseback to New York to trace this clue, the excitement of the journey resulted in his death soon after his return and before tidings had been received from the absent son. A few weeks later a letter was received from him dated at Charleston, S. C., expressing pleasure upon hearing again from his relatives at home, and his sorrow at the death of his parents and sister. His letters show a genial and loving character. The reason of his absence is not known, although tradition has it that it was a love affair. At his invitation four of his brothers settled at various points in the South; they seem to have succeeded fairly well in business, but the average length of the life of the five brothers who settled in the South was less by eighteen years than of the six who remained in their native climate. David the fourth son, lived for a series of years in Putney, Vermont, and kept a general store. He was active in church and military affairs. His last years were spent in Boston and his last Sabbath in teaching (as was his usual custom) a Bible class in the State Prison at Charlestown, Mass.

Roger, the fifth son, lived on the homestead in Heath. He acquired a large fortune for the period and the locality; his intelligence, integrity and uprightness commanded the confidence of his associates. He held perhaps every office in the gift of the town, and was active in church and military affairs, holding the several grades of office in the local militia, including the command of a regiment noted for its superior drill and equipment. He was also active in educational and political reforms of the period, and in company with Miss Lyon canvassed the town of Heath and raised $1200 for the first seminary building at South Hadley; a remarkable record of benevolence for a small agricultural town. In 1833, he removed to Charlemont, which was his home until his death in 1840. He helped to locate and build the new county buildings in Greenfield at the organization of the new county, and on the day before his death, June 1, 1840, was nominated by the new Liberty party of Massachusetts as their candidate for Lieutenant-governor.

His wife was a daughter of Col. Hugh Maxwell of Heath. Their eldest son, Joshua, was graduated from Yale, and so far as known, was the only man who ever ventured to open a law office in Heath. Later he became a minister and active in the temperance and anti-slavery movements, but is better known as editor of the Emancipator and the New York Independent. In the early anti-slavery period he spent several winters in Washington reporting the proceedings of Congress for his paper. He was present when John Quincy Adams presented a petition from the people of his district for the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia;

the Southern members were opposing the reception of petitions upon the subject of slavery. Mr. Adams, in his defense of the right of petition, requested the clerk to read the constitution. The clerk read a few sentences and stopped; Mr. Adams said, "read on." The clerk read again and stopped; after several repetitions Mr. Adams said, "read on until I tell you to stop." When he reached the words, "Congress shall make no law abridging the right of the people to petition the government for a redress of grievance," Mr. Adams said, "that will do." And without previous special preparation spoke for three days in defense of the right of petition. Mr. Leavitt reported the speech in full, but by some means the Southern sympathizers obtained possession of it and in consequence it has never been printed. Mr. Leavitt often said it was the most eloquent speech he ever heard from the lips of the "old man eloquent."

Roswell was a successful physician and a respected and useful citizen of Cornish, N. H. His wife was a granddaughter of Rev. Jonathan Ashley, the second minister of Deerfield, and a daughter of Tirsah (Field) Ashley, the second wife of Rev. Jonathan Leavitt. Their first son, Jonathan, was for twenty-five years pastor of the Richmond Street church of Providence, R. I. A daughter was the wife of Rev. Aaron Foster, for twenty years the honored pastor of the little church in East Charlemont. Mrs. Foster lived a beautiful and quiet life; she had a lively interest in each individuality and her influence became a power in the community.

Hooker, the youngest of the eleven sons, was a resident of Greenfield, an attorney, and held the offices of county treasurer and clerk of the court from 1815 until his death in 1842. This family received the usual excellent New England social and religious training, and also did their full share of the work of clearing the wilderness of the native forest and reducing to ashes the magnificent growth of timber at the time on the soil. Recalling these youthful experiences, a brother in Charleston, S. C., wrote to the brother on the homestead in Heath, as follows: "I rejoice in your prosperity and successful pursuit of agriculture on the soil which gave the most of us birth, and all of us a happy subsistence, our pleasures were many and great. The reflection is highly animating, but our labors and fatigues were extreme and excessive and would strike a Carolinian with horror."

Of the next generation our knowledge is limited to one representative, Roger Hooker, son of Roger, born in Heath, July 21, 1805; married Sept. 3, 1829, Keziah Osgood Hunt⁶ (13577), born in Heath, April, 17, 1807. In early life he was interested in military affairs and was Colonel in the militia; he represented Franklin county in the State Senate in 1866, and his district in the House of Representatives two terms following 1868, the second term being elected from his district of five towns without a dissenting vote. He was one of the incorporators of the Troy and Greenfield Railroad which corporation undertook the building of the Hoosac Tunnel and was also much interested in the cause of education. They were the parents of John Hooker Leavitt of Waterloo, also of William Hunt Leavitt formerly of Waterloo, now in Minneapolis, Minn., and Henry Jenkins Leavitt, who died in Yazoo, Miss., July 8, 1866. Mrs. Leavitt died November 11, 1838, and he married second her sister, Eliza⁶ (13576); the family moved to Charlemont in 1838, where Eliza died June 1, 1876. Mr. Leavitt died in Waterloo, while visiting his sons, July 17, 1885.

ADDITIONS TO VOLUME III.

David H. Hayter, husband of Almira P. Johnson⁸ (19718), p. 28, died at his home in Worcester, Mass., Feb. 2, 1905. He was born in Elgin, Province of Quebec, Apr. 10, 1845, his father having been born in England and his mother in Scotland. When fifteen years of age he came to Burlington, Vt., where he learned the trade of printing on the "Free Press." In 1865 or 6 he came to Clinton, Mass., and entered the composing room of the "Courant," where he remained some twenty years and while there served as town constable and truant officer. He married in Clinton, Dec. 25, 1871, Almira P. Johnson, who survives him. In 1885, he was appointed a member of the district police soon after removing to Worcester, and in 1892 appointed a deputy sheriff, becoming one of the court officers, which position he held by re-appointments until his death, ranking thirteen on the list of deputies in length of service. Mr. Hayter was prominent in Masonic circles, having been initiated in Trinity lodge, in Worcester, and also into the Clinton Royal Arch chapter and Worcester commandery, Knights Templar; he belonged to the Massachusetts Consistory, and to Aleppo Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. of Boston, and was interested in the Order of the Eastern Star, an auxiliary which includes the wives of Masons, and in other city organizations.
